Commentary

Deutsch (Dokumente, 380) includes a report of Mozart's death published in Musikalisches Wochenblatt in the issue following this one (XII:94); that report, dated 12 Dec, comes from a correspondent in Prague. However, Deutsch omits this earlier report of Mozart's death from issue XI of the Wochenblatt. The cause of death listed here is "Brustwassersucht" (sometimes equated with the modern term "hydrothorax"). The cause of death listed in the Viennese records, on the other hand, is "hitziges Frieselfieber" (usually translated as "severe miliary fever"; see Dokumente, 367–68).
